WALKED ALL DAY.

How A Georgia Moonshiner Earned Fifty Cents.

A strange scene was enacted in the yard of the county jail Sunday.

If any one had looked behind the tall board fence among the moonshiners about 6 o'clock yesterday morning they would have seen from the earnest conversation of the men and their excited gestures that something unusual was about to happen, and if they had peeped behind the fence at 8:30 they would have seen a long, tall fellow walking back and forth along the narrow yards, looking neither to the right nor left, but keeping up the steady lick he had struck, unmindful of the remarks made by his companions.

It was a long walk, for it began at 6:30 in the morning and ended at 7 in the evening, but the most remarkable part about it was that the young man walked the day away for the small sum of fifty cents.

The young man who did the walking is David R. Payne, of Union county, who is serving a thirty-day sentence in jail for illicit distilling.

His home is on Young Cane creek, and he is as wild and untutored as a mountain moonshiner ever gets to be. Yesterday morning when breakfast was being served, Turnkey Pat McCullough, in a joking way, said to Payne, who had been bragging about the long walks he had taken, "I'll bet you fifty cents you can't walk all day."

"A whole fifty cents?" he exclaimed, with a whistle of astonishment.

"Yes; fifty cents," replied Mr. McCullough.

"You mean it, pardner; you ainter joking?"

"Not a bit of it."

"It's a go, pardner. I'll take the bet of any or you fellers will cover the fifty cents."

The money was covered and at 6:30 o'clock Payne began his walk, striking into a long, swinging stride, which he kept up all day long. He walked from one side of the yard to the other, a distance of 156 yards for the round trip, making it every two minutes.

When dinner time came he did not stop to eat, but took his plate of victuals in his hand, eating as he walked. He was given water many times during the day, but never stopped to drink it. He swallowed it on the move, and never once lost the long, swinging stride he started in with in the morning.

He kept up this walk until seven o'clock, never stopping for a minute after he had started.

By making the calculation, it will be seen that, if he walked 156 yards in two minutes, he walked from 6:30 to 7, 123 hours, a distance of 33 miles and a fraction.

He was given the fifty cents when he finished his walk, and seemed very proud of it as he laid it away in his pocket with the remark, "That's a good little pile er money. I never did see as much as $5 at one time during all my life." Atlanta Journal.

Unmistakable Postal Cards.

The postmaster general has given an opinion on the matter of endeavoring to collect debts by the sending of postal cards which is certain to be one of interest to every business man. Two postal cards were submitted to him. On one was written: "Please call and settle account which is long past due and for which our collector has called several times, and oblige." The other contained these words: "You owe us $1.80. We have called several times for same. If not paid at once we shall place with our law agency for collection." The postmaster general, on the decision of an eminent judge, stated that the first card was mailable and that the second was not. The logic of this decision is that when a threat, direct or implied, is written upon a postal card, the card is unmailable.

Floyd County For Jo.

Hon. W. S. Harkins, of Prestonsburg, passed through the city last Friday night en route home from Louisville, where he has been attending federal court. Mr. Harkins informs us that Mr. A. B. Stephens, of his county, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in this district, but that Jo M. Kendall would have no trouble in carrying the county of Floyd against him. Keep-a-jumpin'.

The merchant who expects to do much business in 1894 must practice the lesson taught in the following story: Two frogs found themselves in a pail of milk and they could not jump out. One of them was for giving up and said to the other, "Good-by; I sink, I die." Said his mate, "Brace up, you old duffer. Keep a-jumpin' and see what turns up." So they kept jumping up and down all night and by morning had so churned the milk that it turned to butter, and they jumped off the butter to the ground.

Applied to business the fable means this: If you want the business of 1894 to exceed that of 1893, "Keep-a-jumpin'." Don't cry, "I sink, I die." The merchant who continues looking for bad times will not survive to see good times. The man who keeps jumping will see good times first. Carry a level head, buy standard goods and keep a good, clean stock, an attractive store, and advertise with bright, attractive ads.

Republican Congressional Convention.

K. J. Hampton, secretary of the Republican congressional committee of the (Tenth) district, has called a meeting of the congressional and executive committees to meet in Winchester June 22, to fix a time and place for the congressional convention, and the time and manner of choosing delegates to it. It is probable that the congressional convention will be held at Jackson or Beattyville. The basis of representation is usually one for every one hundred votes or fraction over fifty. This will make the total vote in convention 115, divided as follows: Breathitt, 6; Clark, 16; Elliott, 5; Estill, 8; Floyd, 6; Johnson, 13; Knott, 2; Lee, 6; Magoffin, 8; Martin, 5; Menefee, 3; Montgomery, 10; Morgan, 6; Pike, 13; Powell, 4; Wolfe, 4.

"Boss" Croker No Longer.

Richard Croker's official connection with Tammany Hall ceased Thursday last week, when he handed in his resignation as chairman of the finance committee. The resignation was accepted. Mr. Croker was in the wigwag until 6 o'clock. He shook hands with his faithful followers before he left. No one has yet been appointed leader in his place nor will there be until after the next campaign. John McQuade will succeed Mr. Croker as chairman of the finance committee. The position will be merely honorary, and will not carry the power attached to it in the past.

Jake Nolan cut and fatally wounded Dolores Bright at Barbourville on Wednesday. Nolan went to Bright's house and proceeded to demolish the furniture, when the Bright woman interfered and was slashed with a razor. Nolan was placed in jail. All parties are colored.

CURIOUS SOFA PILLOWS.

A Craze for Collecting Them—Those that Have a Meaning.

One would think that feminine fickle-ness would banish sofa pillows from the popular place they occupy, but they are as much in vogue as ever. Whether one lives in large house or tiny apartment, there are pillows. One or two are not enough, no, seven, any way, for one couch and extras. In a tiny up-town house belonging to an actress are forty-seven pillows, and materials in a drawer for the three to complete the half hundred. She has window seats and couches, tete-a-tetes, and chairs for them. They are all sizes and shapes and kinds, from broad to gingham. Brooklyn, too, has the fad, and neighbors vie with one another as to how many can be put in the bow window.

It seems not only necessary to have your pillows pretty, but they must have a meaning as well. Souvenir pillows are as popular as spoons. The other day a young man showed her pillows, which were an inviting little group. The first, a pink silk one, which, patting tenderly, she told was made of the gown she wore when he first saw her; the next a white India silk with brown spots, was the gown when he asked the all-important question. She remarked the wrinkled condition, but said they were from the wedding gown, embroidered with orange blossoms; and the sweetest pillow of all, a tiny one of white mull, with a frill of Valenciennes lace, was the baby's christening robe. What could one not dream resting among such memories!

Another young woman has her pillows made from pieces of each gown in her trousseau, and being married in summer, they are mostly dainty silk ones.

In Boston, heart-shaped engagement pillows are superseding engagement cups.

Perhaps the most striking collections are found in studios—in one down town they are pieces of gingham or percale—and they are as brilliant and beautiful as need be. The maker bought the goods out of season, and each one is a bargain. The most attractive, a white with red poppies, was ten cents a yard, while big shilling Scotch plaid made fetching ones, indeed.

It is quite as important nowadays to have one's pillows elaborately embroidered with one's crest as the note paper or table linen. One at least our bachelors are as enthusiastic as the women, and the popular ones are recipients of many beautiful specimens. One fellow in his "rooms" has a pillow made of a dark blue one of every nation, our own Stars and Stripes flung against Ireland's green, and heaped on both are China's dragon and "St. George for the Dragon Slayer." He says the next collection he makes he is going to have the girls make portraits of all our presidents on white linen ones.

School-girls have the craze, too, but one little friend has them to a great purpose. In the corner of the library is a tete-a-tete, and she has a pillow for each favorite college—a dark blue one with a large white Y on it, a lovely crimson one, and a giddy orange and black. When Mr. Yale comes to call the others are tucked away, while the Boston man appears crimson occupies the place of honor, and so on. She says them all a delicate compliment, indeed.

We American women never use pillows as do our luxurious sisters of the orient. We haven't time to lounge, and they are for effect certainly. One husband remarks: "They are made to appear inviting; but, heaven! if I dare disturb one!"—N. Y. Sun.

REPUBLICAN ATTACKS.

Shifting the Blame Due to the Nightingale.

The effrontery of the republican leaders and organs in charging upon the democratic party—and especially upon the editor of the Free Press—the stringency through which we have passed and the resulting consequences to the business of the country is the most brazen thing of the kind the country has ever witnessed. If these leaders and organs had any sense of responsibility or of shame they would be doing penance in sackcloth and ashes for the sad effects of the conduct and reckless mismanagement of their party instead of trying to foist the responsibility upon the shoulders of their political opponents. For it is, as clear as day to the intelligence of the world that, in so far as the troubles from which the country has been suffering and still suffers can be traced to the action of any political party, they are directly traceable to the action of the republican party.

Largely, of course, they are due to causes with which the country has had long experience to extravagance and over-confidence in business and to the undue extension of credits which cannot with entire justice be charged to any party. But the most glaring and successful contradiction of the statement that the bulk of our business troubles are due directly to the extravagant expenditure of the republican party while in power and to the class legislation which bears the label of that party. That the result did not show until that party had been driven from power and the indulgent and over-privileged people do not change the fact. It was clearly foreseen while the party was in power and in the main as clearly predicted; it was because it was so seen and predicted that the party was driven from power.

That the Sherman silver law was in great part responsible for our financial troubles has been clearly, though begrudgingly, admitted by the more intelligent leaders of the republican party. That it was because it was so seen and predicted that the party was driven from power.

FRUITS OF PROTECTION.

Republican Rule Responsible for Socialistic Demoralizations.

The Coxe movement is chiefly significant as an expression of the socialistic tendencies that have developed under republican rule and protectionist principles. In France the doctrine of protection has been accepted by the socialists in its logical consequences, and men are saying to the state: "Since protection makes prices high, give us also protection for wages. Fix a minimum scale, and let the state compel employers to observe it."

There was no principle more essentially embodied in the foundations of American liberty than the principle of individual liberty—the independence of the citizen. The state was sovereign only because he, the citizen, gave it of his own sovereignty. It was his creation; he owed nothing to the state but his loyalty and obedience to necessary laws. The state owed all to him. This spirit gave the dignity and strength that characterized the men of America. In its destruction there has been no influence more potent than the doctrine of protection. In its very essence it assumes that one set of individuals is not as strong as another, but that it is the duty of the state to protect the weaker.

It is now clear that the doctrine of protection is a man's right to stand up before the world and win his own way through it. In practice, it has fostered the idea that one class must be getting to contribute to another and far smaller class; that the government has the right to interfere in the affairs of its citizens and determine how much of one's goods and services he can give to another man. It has made the government a part of a party and to the money-getting machinery of the favored class. It has been the cause of a governmental function, leaving the mind of the citizen with no sense of his personal independence and individual responsibility, and no sense of a longer a nation of sovereigns, but of dependents. So paternalism drifts into socialism, and so protection comes back to the protection in the appeal of Coxe's "army" for help.

In this country the masses have not yet learned to apply the logic of the situation; but they are fast learning it. It is no new idea, the inevitable consequence of protection were foreseen years ago by students of sociological tendencies. So long ago as 1851 Cavour, the Italian economist, said: "The doctrine of protection is a man's right to stand up before the world and win his own way through it. It will, perhaps, require a little stretch of the imagination on the part of the reader to recognize the fact that the two portraits at the head of this article are of the same individual; and yet they are truthful sketches made from photographs, taken only a few months apart, of a very much esteemed citizen of Illinois—Mr. C. H. Harris, whose address is No. 1232 Second Avenue, Rock Island, Ill. The following extract from a letter written by Mr. Harris explains the marvellous change in his personal appearance. He writes: "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery saved my life and has made me a man. My home physician says I am good for forty years yet. You will remember that I was just between life and death, and all of my friends were sure it was a case of death, and I commenced taking a second bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery' when I became able to sit up and the cough was very much better, and the blood from my lungs stopped, and before I had taken six bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' my cough ceased and I was a new man and ready for business."

I now feel that it is a duty that I owe to my fellow-men to recommend to them the 'Golden Medical Discovery' which saved my life when doctors and all other medicines failed to do me any good. I send to you with this letter two of my photographs, one taken a few weeks before I was taken down sick in bed, and the other was taken after I was well. These two photographs are faithfully re-produced at the head of this article. Mr. Harris's experience in the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' is not an exceptional one. Thousands of eminent people in all parts of the world testify, in just as emphatic language, to his marvelous curative powers over all chronic bronchitis, throat and lung diseases, chronic nasal catarrh, asthma, and kindred diseases. Eminent physicians prescribe 'Golden Medical Discovery' when any of their dear ones' lives are imperiled by such ailments as Consumption. Under such circumstances only the most reliable remedy would be depended upon. The following letter is to the point. It is from an eminent physician of St. Louis, Mo., and is a most interesting one. "Consumption is hereditary in my wife's family; some have already died with the disease. My wife has a sister, Mrs. E. A. Clary, that was taken with consumption. She used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and, to the surprise of her many friends, she got well. My wife has also had hemorrhages from the lungs, and my sister insisted on her using the 'Golden Medical Discovery'."

It would be any more convincing, we could eat all the columns of this paper with letters testifying to the cure of the severest diseases of the throat, larynx and lungs, by the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery'. To build up solid flesh and strength after the grip, pneumonia, 'lung fever', exhausting fevers, and other prostrating diseases, it has no equal. It does not make fat like cod liver oil and its easy composition, but solid, substantial flesh. A complete treatise on Throat, Bronchitis, Lung Diseases, also including Asthma and Chronic Nasal Catarrh, and pointing out the most reliable means of home treatment for these maladies, will be mailed to any address by the World's Dispensary Medical Association at Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of six cents in stamps, to pay postage.

PROGRESSIVE TEXANS.

What Travis County Has Done to Improve Its Public Roads.

About two years ago we furnished Travis county, Tex., with a complete outfit for stone road-making—crusher, engine and roller. They had previously been using our road-grinding machines, and we present herewith an illustration showing the kind of roads that county is now building. An article by John C. Edgar, of Travis county, Tex., may no doubt be of interest to our readers, as it shows how it was possible for Travis county to secure a better condition of public highways.

Mr. Edgar, in commenting upon the road situation in Travis county, says: "While it is true that our road and bridge funds will not permit of an extensive system of road-making, it is possible to do a great deal more than is attempted. Many have been deterred from doing anything by not knowing anything about road-making, and through fear of 'bankrupting the county.' That feeling seems to have prevailed in the (Travis) county from time immemorial until the election of our present judge and board of commissioners about a year ago.

"The majority of that body happened to be broad-gauged, progressive men, who recognized their responsibilities and determined to give the people all the relief within their power. What they did may be a useful guide for others. They are making steady progress and laying the foundation of a grand system of county roads. I may say that this county is about two-thirds black prairie and the balance mountain land. The black land furnishes a good dry weather road, but a bad and often impossible one in wet weather. The mountain roads are rough but never closed to travel, and do not give the travelers much trouble. Road improvement is, therefore, confined to our black mountain lanes. For some years the county has owned a number of scrapers, mule teams, plows, etc., which were used for road purposes, but the controlling power seemed content to do small repairs and had no plan of road-making.

"Now, we have a good grading machine, drawn by twelve mules, which excavates the soil on the sides and dumps it in the middle of the road, leaving good ditches. . . . We have also got a stone crushing machine, driven by steam power, for converting rock into road metal.

"Our mountain formation is limestone, well adapted for road material in this climate, where we never have frost to swell and have as in more northern climates. . . . There is plenty of good material being used, indeed more than plenty, in fact more than double the amount necessary. Our roads are being covered with crushed stone to a depth of twelve to eighteen inches, according to the grading formation of the surface. This is not thoroughness, but waste. Macadam rarely put down a coat of material thicker than six or eight inches, the exception being the near approach to large cities, where the traffic was continuous and heavy. . . . If six inches of road metal ever made a good and durable road, it would do so where they are now depositing eighteen inches.

"That is where the waste comes. By this management we are now getting but one mile of road where we should have two and a half, or road of a better quality. . . . The chief item of cost where convict labor and steam crushers are used is for hauling. Our farmers are arranging to do this voluntarily by weekly turns. . . . It seems to me if the farmers in our black land counties would unite in this matter and press it upon their county representatives, instead of complaining and demanding impossible concessions from a paternal government, they would be doing more to improve their condition and advance the prosperity of their class."

Any comment on the foregoing seems to us to be unnecessary. It shows conclusively that the work of improving American roads is much harder in contemplation than in realization; and, although necessarily a work of considerable magnitude, it must be apparent to the thoughtful mind that the same character of energy, persistence and intelligence which has produced such stupendous results in the development of other branches of our internal improvements, must eventually give to this country a condition of public highways which will more fittingly represent its advanced civilization.—Good Roads.

SPRAYING SAVED HALF.

Interesting Experiments Carried out at the Ohio Station.

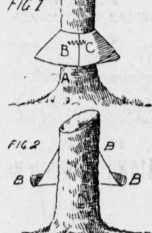

The opinion has been held by a few that unfavorable weather is not, in all cases, the direct cause of failure, and some experiments carried out by the Ohio experiment station strengthen this opinion. An orchard of Newtown pippins, of nearly two hundred trees, was divided off into plots, none of the plots containing less than one row, and some as many as four. The dilute Bordeaux mixture, which was found to be best in '92, occupied the same place last season. The ingredients used in the mixture were sulphate of copper, 4 pounds; lime, 4 pounds; water, 50 gallons. Comparing the two plots where this compound was used with the two unsprayed plots the astonishing fact was observed that no marketable fruit could be found on the unsprayed plots, nor was there much fruit of any kind, while on the sprayed plots, which had been subjected to the same unfavorable climatic conditions, there was about half a crop.

It is well known that scab attacks apples in all stages of growth, and that if it appears very early it may cause the young fruit to drop prematurely. When it attacks the blossoms it, of course, destroys them. The first spraying was done before the trees had bloomed, and the supposition is that many of the fungus spores were thus destroyed and the apples were thus given a chance to develop. Early spraying is essential to the best success in preventing the apple scab. The spores, from which the scab fungus develops, live over winter on the trees, and begin growth in the spring at the same time as the leaves start to grow. How rapidly the fungus develops depends upon the weather. No dates can be named for spraying, but a good plan is to make the first application just before the leaves open, and the second soon after the blossoms fall, at which time four ounces of paris green should be added to each gallon of the mixture, in order to kill the apple worm. A third spraying with the combined mixture is to be given about ten days later, and still another after the same length of time, in case of continued wet weather.—Farm and Home.

PROTECT THE TREES.

A Good Device the Patent on Which Has Just Expired.

Among the expired patents is one for the protection of fruit-bearing trees against insect pests, which never received the attention it deserves. The device can be made of any thin metal; tin would be preferable on account of cheapness, but copper would be the most enduring. The metal is so cut and formed that when applied to a tree it resembles the frustum of a cone as at B, Fig. 1. In the original it was held in place by an elastic band, which is not as suitable as a small spiral spring, as shown by our drawing (C), which passes over hooks or projections on its opposite ends, and draws them together, making it fit snug around the tree. If the tree is uneven, or has cavities in its bark, the clasping edge of the projector can be forced or bent in to them, so that a correct fit is made. These projections are made at a very light cost, and can be of the largest size by securing together several pieces of tin. The lower edge can be turned up slightly, to hold some repulsive compound or liquid, as shown in Fig. 2 (B), but this is not necessary for protection against the canker worm, for which the device is mainly intended to be used.—American Gardening.

Habcock Butter Fat Test.
The Habcock butter fat test does not show the number of pounds of butter in the milk. The test is designed to show the butter fat only, and as butter contains from 15 to 20 per cent. of other matter such as water, curd and salt, it is of course likely that the yield of butter will be considerably more than the test shows. This excess may be from 10 to as much as 25 per cent. more than the test in accordance with the method used and the manner in which the butter is worked. Of course the more water and salt that is incorporated with the butter the greater excess can be obtained. When a separation is used and the cream is handled in an intelligent way the loss of fat should be very slight. On the average I think the yield of butter exceeds the test by about 15 per cent. It could not exceed as much as 25 per cent. without making a butter that was very low in fat.—S. M. Habcock, Chemist Wisconsin Experiment Station.

A PENITENTIARY.

Convict Likes Me More Than He Does Warden Cooper.

FRANKFORT, KY., 4-18, 94.
Charles C. Moore, Editor Blue Grass Blade, Lexington, Ky.

Sir—Have a copy of last week's Blade, and I like the paper so much I would like to have it the few weeks I am here.

Mr. Moore, I am in the penitentiary here for two years. My time will be up the 21st of next month (May), and if you will be so kind as to send me the Blade until the 21st of May, I will drop in and see you on the day my time is out and pay you for same.

Mr. Moore, I am clerk in the office of the Kentucky chair company, and am outside all the time but Sunday, and I always hate to see Sunday come. I go to hear the sisters talk sometimes, but I never go to hear Brother Cooper. I will be in Lexington on the 21st and may be I can give you a little piece for your paper.

Hoping I will receive a paper this week, I am respectfully,
CHARLEY J. BROWN.

Brother, the Blade, will come to you regularly. Write me the piece. Come and see me as soon as you get out. I have been in two jails, and may be sent to the penitentiary, and, of course, you being in the penitentiary does not prove to me that you are a bad man. I want to give you some kind of a job on the Blade. There are so many rascals on the outside of the penitentiary that I want to try some man on the inside of it.

Give my love to the warden and tell him that I want him to stand in with me in editing the Blade, if they send me to the penitentiary. We would make a million dollars. My old breeches are about worn out, and I am going to buy me some striped ones just to get my hand in—or rather to get my foot in. I walked six miles last fall to hear Bro. Cooper preach. I heard him. If I have to go to hear him in the penitentiary I am going to get the governor to commute my sentence to hanging—Blue Grass Blade.

You will want a mower or reaper and binder, and before you make a purchase in that line call and see me under Opera House, Mt. Sterling, Ky., where you will also find a full line of hardware and agricultural implements. Also, the best fertilizer for tobacco ever used anywhere. Respectfully,
W. W. REED.

B. K. Hart Nominates.

The Democratic nominated convention at Mayville, on the 9th inst., was one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever held in the Ninth (Ky.) district. It was a regular love feast, as there was no contest. Hon. B. K. Hart, of Fleming, was the unanimous choice of the convention.

He is a young man, but has an able record, having represented his county three times in the legislature. His resolutions endorsed the present administration and urged all Democratic votes to aid in the immediate passage of reform measure. Senators who were in opposition to the passage of such measures were denounced as traitors. Fighting speeches were made by Attorney General Hendrick, General Wat Harbin, Captain Poynter and others.

"So Clean" is the finest pure white soap ever introduced here. It is better than Cashmere Bouquet for the toilet, superior to Ivory for fine laundry, and ahead of Spafford for the kitchen. One cake, 10c; 2 for 15c; 4 for 25c. Sold at this office only.

Another Mad Man Gone Right.

The Transcriber publishes the following extract from a private letter from Senator John P. Salter, of Morgan county, to Capt. W. H. May:

"Many discreet and fairly virtuous Democrats in this neck of the woods sympathize with your distinguished and brilliant congressman, and I would be glad to see your district return him. We have no disposition to condemn or endorse his lawlessness, but we cannot overlook or ignore his great ability and public service. I am your friend, JOHN P. SALTER."

A lady at Tooleys, La., was very sick with bilious colic when M. C. Tisel, a prominent merchant of the town gave her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. He says she was well in forty minutes after taking the first dose. For sale by John M. Brown.

THE HERALD, over at Hazel Green, grows steadily apace, abounding pleasantly having tied on a Campbell cylinder press.—Beattyville Enterprise.

He Visited Paintsville.

Hon. Jo M. Kendall, of Floyd county, and candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in this district, gave the Times office a pleasant call today. He always remembers "us fellows" when he is in town. No one doubts Jo Kendall's popularity in this county; no one will doubt for a moment that he is as deserving and gallant a young Democrat as ever asked a favor of the people. Mr. Kendall seems in the best of spirits and confident of victory, and although he has met with some very unpleasant surprises, he still retains the nerve and grit which is characteristic of him. He thinks the Tenth congressional district is not for sale yet, and that the hope of the poor man for his son and the ambition of deserving young men of Kentucky will not be crushed under the foot of might.—Paintsville Times.

Examine the date after your name on the margin of this paper, and if behind send us $1 at once, for which we will be quite thankful.

Another Candidate.

Any doubts that may have been in the minds of the Democrats of Magoffin county in regard to the candidacy of Hon. A. B. Stephens, of Floyd county, for congress in the Tenth district, were put at rest last week. Circuit court convened at Salyersville on the 9th inst., and an immense crowd being present, Mr. Stephens made an eloquent appeal to the Democrats of Magoffin county to stand by him as the candidate of their sister county of Floyd. He also touched lightly on political questions and was replied to by Major W. J. Seitz, of West Liberty, candidate for the Republican nomination.

P. L. Reese, at Mt. Sterling, is headquarters in Kentucky for sewing machines and supplies. Write him for bottom prices.

He Has Moved Away.

Samuel J. Salter left Monday morning for Pikeville, where he will make his future home. Sam leaves a host of friends behind him who wish him abundant success in his new location. He made Morgan county a first class attorney, as good as the county has had for many years, and at his new home we expect to hear of him coming to the front, as he is full of pluck and works with a determination at anything he goes into, and has always been very fortunate in all his undertakings except finding a wife.—Morgan Messenger.

The Electropoise is a quick cure for insomnia. I am much improved in every way. G. M. Phillips, Bradfordsville, Ky.

The physicians will have to adopt the Electropoise in their practice. Dr. A. B. Love, Bedford, Ky.

We have had good results in curing various ailments with the Electropoise. J. W. Cotton, Bardonia, Ky.

Typhoid fever left me in such a condition that I had despaired of ever getting better, the Electropoise relieved me of all pain first application. I am surely cured by this great remedy. W. T. Richardson, Corbin, Ky.

I cured a young calf that I am sure would have died had I not used the Electropoise on it. The result was quick and satisfactory. Mrs. B. H. Pryor, Jackson, Ky.

The Electropoise has never failed in any case that I have tried it and I have tested it severely. Ed. W. Shankland, Carlisle, Ky.

The Electropoise is worth $100 a day to me. M. S. Crale, Meeting Creek, Ky.
The Electropoise has cured me of Bright's disease after everything else had failed. L. A. Hopson, Hopson, Ky.
My wife had been a helpless invalid for sixteen years, when she began treatment with the Electropoise, she now does her own house work and cooking. We never dreamed of anything working such a change. H. R. Woodward, Hardyville, Ky.

The meeting at the Christian church with Elder Tindler in the pulpit, is still in progress.

John H. Pierat is now in Covington, where he is a petit juror in the federal court in session at that place.

Miss Rose Trimble whose illness has several times been mentioned in these columns, is still dangerously sick.

Dr. Stamper requests us to publish a call for an examination of non-graduate physicians, which we will do next week.

Mrs. Belle Godsey, who has been suffering from rheumatism for sometime, is now using the Electropulse and improving rapidly.

The congressional muddle in this district promises to be very interesting before the finish, and a dark horse may win the prize.

The West Lexington Presbytery, recently in session at Cynthiana, appointed Rev. E. P. Mickel, of Jackson, to assist Rev. James Little in his work in this territory.

Rev. E. W. Bedinger of Anchorage, will begin a meeting in the Presbyterian church at this place on the Friday before the fourth Sunday in this month, and all are invited to attend.

Burt Nevelle, an actor who recently came here on an engagement with the Teet's Bros. show, is confined to his bed with consumption and critically ill. Dr. Taulbee is attending him and hopes to pull him through.

Charley Keyser, representing the old reliable toot and shoe house of C. P. Tracy & Co., Portsmouth, Ohio, was here Tuesday and Wednesday, and he incidentally stated that the congressional tangle in the upper counties grows worse day after day.

Hon. J. M. Kendall, of Floyd county, was in town Wednesday shaking hands with the boys, and seems quite sanguine with regard to the nomination for congress. Indeed, he thinks the race will be between him and Mr. Lisle, and that the dark horses, some two or three of which have entered the contest, will not be in it.

R. D. Motley received a letter from James K. Wells, who is attending the Kentucky School of Medicine, where Mr. Motley's little boy, Oscar, went to have an operation performed, and he says that the operation was a success in every particular. The little fellow will not be confined to his bed, but allowed to play with the children at the hospital, where he will have to stay a couple of months.

Captain Weedon Gay, a prominent farmer and trader, well known to many of our citizens, died at his home at Bowen, Powell county, on Saturday night. He had been very dependent since the death of his son, Joel Gay, a few weeks ago. It will be remembered that the young man killed himself in the presence of both father and mother. Captain Gay had said to a number of friends that he did not want to live, but whether he died by his own hand or from natural causes we have not been able to definitely ascertain, but it is generally thought that he suicided.

Judge Amos Davis, of Morgan county, was here Wednesday, representing Bettman Bros. & Co., clothiers of Cincinnati, and he intimated that he might answer the solicitation of a number of friends and make the race for congress in this district. Judge is thoroughly identified with the interests of the mountains, has an immense following, is an incorruptible gentleman well versed in statecraft, and should he conclude to make the race he will prove a formidable candidate. If he definitely declares his candidacy, THE HERALD will have his announcement and we will have more to say about him.

Dr. B. J. Cox, of Elliottsville, Rowan county, passed through here Wednesday en route home. He had been visiting his sons, Dr. Drack, Samp, and Joel, all of whom live in our county. Dr. Cox, sr., was 84 years of age on the 15th of March last but looks to be much younger, and can ride horseback much better than many not half so old. He told the writer that he can ride after night and frequently does so in the practice of medicine, and that for two years past he has not felt a pain. He has been a tobacco chewer since he was 23 years old, but does not smoke. Dr. Cox is connected with the Rock Spring Association of Baptists, and will take an active part in its affairs. He looks to be in perfect health and from present indications there are yet many years of usefulness before him.

As will be seen from the advertisement of the Hazel Green fair, which appears in our issue today, it will this year be run as a mountain fair. This is the best move ever made by the association, as our mountain farmers had no chance against the blue grass people. The four preceding fairs being open to the world induced many of our farmers to import a better class of horses, cattle, hogs and sheep, and to that extent it has been a benefit in not barring the blue grass. But in a competing exhibition against them our people had no chance of winning, and in that respect it was detrimental. So, on the whole, it has been a benefit and placed us in a position that we can now compete with each other. This will encourage enterprise in getting up the best stock for exhibition, and thus our people will be enabled to go on improving their stock until after awhile we can again throw down the bars and bid the blue grass come in. Then we will be prepared to meet them with stock as good as they have, and need have no fear. But now it is best to bat them, and we believe the association has strengthened itself with the people in doing so.

Married, at the residence of the brides' father, R. A. Childers, Maytown, May 9, Rev. W. W. Manker, of the Methodist church, officiating, Robert Wills, only son of Jordan Wills, of Morgan county, to Miss Sarah Childers. The wedding was very quiet, only the relatives and a few intimate friends being present. The groom is a prosperous young farmer of Morgan county, and a very popular gentleman. Miss Childers, the bride, is a very handsome young lady, loved and respected by all who know her. Their many friends extend congratulations and sincerely hope their married life will be happy and prosperous. They will go to housekeeping soon on his farm near Maytown.

The election officers for the primary election, to be held on the 26th inst., are as follows: Hazel Green—W. T. Swango, clerk; Bill Toliver, sheriff; Erastus Brooks and John Henry Campbell, judges. Campton—Robt. Carroll, clerk; John Drake, sheriff; Douglas Evans and C. C. Wireman, judges. Torrent—Henry Cox, clerk; Wm. L. Bush, sheriff; J. Creech and Jesse Adams, judges. Red River—Frank P. Wilson, clerk; Robt. Anderson, sheriff; Henry Rose and Dick Lindon, judges. Stillwater—John Barker, clerk; George Brooks, sheriff; John Taylor and Joe A. Rose, judges. Holly—J. W. Congleton, clerk; Wash Tyree, sheriff; R. F. Hatton and Mace Gibbs, judges.

See the advertisement headed "Ordinances" and acquaint yourselves thoroughly with its provisions if you would avoid trouble. The new constitution requires all towns of the sixth class to organize under the charter made and provided for its class, and this Hazel Green has done. The trustees do not desire to impose a penalty on any person or put any one to inconvenience, but they do desire that all ordinances shall be complied with and in this wish ask the co-operation of all good citizens both in town and county. Every good citizen will, therefore, help them in the good work and we hope all will be satisfied.

Academy Notes.
Has any one heard of the academy lamp?

S. M. Nickell was at West Liberty Saturday.

Miss Nannie Fields spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of her parents, near Ezel.

H. C. and Florence Quicksall were visiting at their former home in Morgan county Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. F. M. Tindler will deliver an address to the school at 11 a. m. today in the chapel, subject: Reading.

J. M. French, A. D. Lacy and J. F. Taulbee spent Saturday at Ezel, but they did not visit the "cliffs" on Sunday.

H. C. Lacy, representative to the blue grass league declamatory contest, will leave for Winchester on the 15th inst.

Quite a number from the Academy will be examined for certificates to teach, on June 1 and 2, in this and adjoining counties.

Howard DeBusk, president of the Kendall club, reports that much interest is being manifested in the order and that the club will be a success.

J. S. Adams, H. C. Lacy, C. E. and J. M. French, E. W. McKinney, G. A. Williams and S. F. Hamilton were faithful in their efforts to assist Mr. Ringo to build a crib and stable, and clear off a hillside on last Saturday. Such assistance is very commendable.

Lee City Locals.

D. N. Wells and Robert F. Anderson went to Clay City last week on business. James Shockey has a very sick child. Dr. W. S. Maddox has been called to see it.

T. F. Robbins, of Patay, Estill county, was here last week, a guest of Dr. W. S. Maddox, who lives above town.

J. C. Callahan, of Crockettville, Breathitt county, passed through here last Saturday enquiring the way to Senator W. H. Taulbee's.

Rev. Hoy B. Crofford, of the Baptist church, is now preaching in our town. He is the first hard-shell Baptist who ever preached in Lee City.

Born, to the wife of G. B. Maloney, a girl, May 10; to the wife of Allison Rose, a boy, May 7; to the wife of E. G. Patrick, a boy, May 13. Don't you think Lee City will soon have a large population.

The following ladies of Lacy creek paid our town a pleasant visit Sunday. Misses Ida and Lillie Rose, daughters of Jos. Rose, and Miss Della Rose, daughter of John B. Rose. The following young men of there also visited here: Ellis Johnson, Stephen Rose, Boon Lacy, Elsie James and Harrison Perkins.

MORGAN COUNTY NEWS.

Ezel Evolutions.

Hon. G. B. Swango was in town last week.

Kelsey Couch returned from the west last week.

Sylvester O'Hair, of Illinois, was in town last week.

Elder J. A. Howard will begin a protracted meeting at this place June 8.

John Combs and Thomas Daniel have returned home from college at Lexington.

Miss Loula Cockrell has been quite sick for some time, but is now slowly improving.

Mr. Dwight, the foreman of the Morgan County Messenger, was in town Saturday and Sunday, and we are sure that he enjoyed the trip.

C. D. Moore, a finished drummer, is now devoting considerable time to the study of music. At least we suppose so, as we notice that he has much to say to an accomplished lady teacher of West Liberty.

One of the grandest and most enjoyable social events that Ezel has ever been blessed with occurred last Saturday and Sunday. The towns of West Liberty, Maytown, Hazel Green and Campton were well represented. One of the special features of attraction and interest of the occasion was a moonlight party given by Misses Anna E. and Emma Pierat, daughters of Silas Pierat. This home is on a beautiful elevation overlooking the town and surrounding country. The place was ornamented with swinging lights which could be seen for miles around. Here assembled one hundred and fifty people, and when everything was in readiness, the West Liberty band boys increased the interest of the occasion by furnishing a melodious music. They were here by special request, and in justice to them we must say that we were surprised at the progress they have made in mastering the art. The climax of the occasion was reached Sunday when the crowd went in wagons, buggies, and on horseback to The Cliffs and had "dinner on the ground." Here the band boys came to the front again and among the pines and boulders that have rested in solitude for ages, echoed the thrilling sounds of music, and no doubt the owls and bats peeped out from their hiding places and thought sure enough Gabriel had come. An artist from New York, who was traveling through the country was induced to attend and make photographs of groups and scenery, which will be a record of a joyous Sunday on May 13, 1894.

Maytown Missiles.

Working and planting corn is the order of this week.

We can now sympathize with the citizens of Ezel when they need none of our sympathy, and can not expect them to have any for our having to go nearly into your county for a postal card or a letter if we should get one. We will go every Friday for THE HERALD sure.

Well, as hard as times are and no better in sight, Robert Wills was married to Miss Sarah Childers, daughter of E. A. W. W. Manker tied the nuptial knot. They will occupy the I. W. Rose property for a short time. Robert will build near his father's, Jordan Wills place.

The Kendall Club.

At a recent meeting of the Kendall Club of this place the following resolutions were offered and adopted:

Whereas, The young men of Hazel Green Academy and Hazel Green and vicinity feel the responsibility that is devolving upon them as citizens of the commonwealth, and desiring that they be represented in the next congress by a man from our own section of country, who will guard this, our next neglected portion of the state, therefore be it

Resolved, That we do heartily endorse the candidacy of Hon. Jo M. Kendall, of Floyd county, and that we will use every honorable means to aid in securing his nomination at the Democratic convention to be held at Campton July 10, 1894.

B. F. QUICKALL, Morgan.
E. E. ATKINSON, Powell.
Committee on Resolutions.

Mr. Kendall will probably address the club on Saturday, May 26.

PHILOPENA.

We ate two philopene once,
Some little time ago;
One of them was "Give or Take!"
And one a "Yes or No!"

Although she tried to catch me off,
And either point to gain;
She always failed, and I, likewise,
My efforts made in vain.

At length I murmured: "Be my wife,
In passioned tones, and low;
I thought she more than liked me—but—
She promptly answered: "No!"

Stung to the quick by this reply,
And my true state to screen,
I looked at her indifferently,
And muttered: "Philopene."

She bit her lip, she seemed so sad,
That, strange to say, I then—
Thinking I saw another chance—
Offered myself again.

She brightened up, and, smiling, said:
"I really have been mean;
I'll change my mind and take you, and—
That other—philopene."

A STUDY IN SCARLET

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

PART II.

CHAPTER VII.—CONTINUED.

"That is true," said I.
"I have already explained to you that what is out of the common is usually a guide rather than a hindrance. In solving a problem of this sort, the grand thing is to be able to reason backward. That is a very useful accomplishment and a very easy one, but people do not practice it much. In the everyday affairs of life it is more usual to approach the subject, and so the other comes to be neglected. There are fifty who can reason synthetically for one who can reason analytically."

"I confess," said I, "that I do not quite follow you."
"I hardly expected that you would. Let me see if I can make it clear. Most people, if you describe a train of events to them, will tell you what the result would be. They can put those events together in their minds, and argue from them that something will come to pass. There are few people, however, who, if you told them a result, would be able to evolve from their own inner consciousness what the steps were which led up to that result. This power is what I mean when I talk of reasoning backward, or analytically."

"I understand," said I.
"Now, this was a case in which you were given the result and had to find everything else for yourself. Now, let me endeavor to show you the different steps in my reasoning. To begin at the beginning, I approached the house, as you know, on foot, and with my mind entirely free from impressions. I naturally began by examining the roadway, and, as I have already explained to you, I saw clearly the marks of a cab, which, I ascertained by inquiry, must have been there during the night. I satisfied myself that it was a cab and not a private carriage by the narrow gauge of the wheels. The ordinary London growler is considerably less wide than a gentleman's broadwheeler."

"This was the first point gained. I then walked slowly down the garden path, which happened to be composed of a clay soil, peculiarly suitable for taking impressions. No doubt it appeared to you to be a mere trampled line of slush, but to my trained eyes every mark upon its surface had a meaning. There is a branch of the detective science which is so important and so much neglected as the art of tracing footprints. Happily, I have always had great success upon it, and much practice has made it second nature to me. I saw the heavy footmarks of the constables, but I saw also the tracks of the two men who had first passed through the garden. It was easy to tell that they had been before the others, because in places their marks had been entirely obliterated by the others stepping upon the top of them. In this way my second link was formed, which told me that the nocturnal visitors were two in number, one remaining upon the gravel (as I calculated from the length of his stride) and the other fashionably dressed, to judge from the small and elegant impression left by his boots."

"On entering the house this last inference was confirmed. My well-booted man lay before me. The tall one, then, had done the murder, if murder there was. There was no wound upon the dead man's person, but the agitated expression upon his face assured me that he had foreseen his fate before it came upon him. Men who die from heart disease or of some other sudden cause never by any chance exhibit agitation upon their features. Having sniffed the dead man's lips, I detected a slightly sour smell, and I came to the conclusion that he had had poison forced upon him. Again I argued that it had been forced upon him, from the hatred and fear expressed upon his face. By the method of exclusion I had arrived at this result, for no other hypothesis would meet the facts. Do not imagine that it was a very unhardy idea. The forcible administration of poison is by no means a new criminal annals. The cases of Dolsky, in Odessa, and of Leturier, in Montpelier, will occur at once to any toxicologist."

"And now came the great question as to the reason why. Robbery had not been the object of the murder, for nothing was taken. Was it politics, then, or was it a woman? That was the question which confronted me. I was inclined from this to the latter supposition. Political assassins are only too glad to die; they work and to fly. This murder had, on the contrary, been done most deliberately, and the perpetrator had left his tracks all over the room, showing that he had been there all the time. It must have been a private wrong, and not a political one, which called for such a methodical revenge. When the inscription was discovered upon the wall, I was more inclined than ever to my opinion. The thing was too evidently a blind. When the ring was found, however, I felt that I was settling the matter. Clearly the murderer had used it to remind his victim of some dead or absent woman. It was at this point that I asked Gregson whether he had in his telegram to Cleveland as to any particular point in Mr. Drebbler's former career. He answered, you remember, in the negative."

"I then proceeded to make a careful examination of the room, which confirmed me in my opinion as to the murderer's height, and furnished me with the additional detail as to the Trichinopoly cigar and the length of his nails. I had already come to the conclusion, since there were no signs of a struggle, that the blood which covered the floor had burst from the murderer's nose in his excitement. I could perceive that the track of blood coincided with the track of his feet. It is seldom that a man unless he is very full-blooded, breaks out in this way, though from emotion, so I hazarded the opinion that the criminal was probably a robust and ruddy-faced man. Events proved that I had judged correctly."

"Having left the house, I proceeded to do what Gregson had neglected. I telegraphed to the head of the police force, limiting my inquiry to the circumstances connected with the marriage of Enoch Drebbler. The answer was conclusive. It told me that Drebbler had already applied for the

You should publish an account of the case. If you won't, I will for you."

"You may do what you like, doctor," he answered with a pun purely English. "Look at this! Look at this!"

"This was the echo for the day, and the paragraph to which paragraph was devoted to the case in question."

"The public," it said, "have lost a sensational treat through the sudden death of the man who, who was suspected of the murder of Mr. Enoch Drebbler and of Mr. Joseph Stanger. The details of the case will probably never be known now, though we are informed upon good authority that the crime was the result of an old-standing and romantic feud, in which love and Mormonism bore a part. It seems that both the victims belonged, in their younger days, to the Latter-Day Saints, and Hope, the deceased prisoner, hails also from Salt Lake City. If the case has had no other effect, it at least brings into the most striking manner the efficiency of our detective police force, and will serve as a lesson to all foreigners that they will do wisely to settle their feuds at home and not to carry them on to British soil. It is an open secret that the credit of this smart capture belongs entirely to the well-known Scotland Yard officials, Messrs. Lestrade and Gregson. The man was apprehended, it appears, in the rooms of a certain Mr. Sherlock Holmes, who has himself as an amateur, albeit somewhat talent in the detective line, and who, with such instructors, may hope in time to attain to some degree of their skill. It is expected that a testimonial of some sort will be presented to the two officers as a fitting recognition of their services."

"Didn't I tell you so when we started?" cried Sherlock Holmes, with a laugh. "That's the result of all our study in scarlet: to get them a testimonial!"

"A 'Noir' mind," I answered; "I have all the facts in my journal and the public shall know them. In the meantime you must make yourself contented by the consciousness of success, like the Roman miser."

"Populus me sibi, at mihi plaudite!" cried the doctor, with a flourish of his hand.

[THE END.]

MONKEYS' THUMBS.

A SIMIAN PADEREWICK COVER TWO OCTAVES.

The hands, the fingers, and above all the thumbs belonging to chieftains attracted my particular attention. Now you must know that it is because man has a thumb, and for the reason that his thumb is so beautifully jointed, supple and adjustable, that he has been able to overcome all the difficulties of watch-making. The other fingers are all very well in their way, but it is the thumb that controls the real movement of the hand. Without a thumb you never could wield a heavy sledgehammer or the most delicate of watch-makers' tools. It is not out of the way to say that man is the master, holding every other living thing "under his thumb."

Here is a little bit of natural history which must be remembered about monkeys. All the monkeys of the old world have some kind of a thumb. As St. George Mivart, a great zoologist, writes: "Any old-world monkey with a rudimentary thumb (that is, a thumb, even if imperfect) is superior in that respect to the New World monkey. In fact, the American monkey has no thumb at all. Nature compensates in a measure in our new-world monkey by giving him a wonderful tail. This American monkey is prehensile. It answers almost the purpose of a fifth limb. A South American monkey gives his tail a hitch around the limb of a tree, and he is off, quite comfortably, independent of hands or feet."

Chieftains' thumbs are superb, being fully four and one-quarter inches long. The ordinary length of the human thumb is about two and one-half inches. Chieftain's middle finger is a trifle over five inches long. Man's is three and one-half inches. The orang-outang's hand was narrow, apparently, but it seemed about the width of that of a human being's, only the sense of proportion was lost, owing to the extreme length of the fingers. The knuckles were small and perfectly in line. The stretch of such a hand as Chieftain's would be enormous, fully thirteen inches. The octave on the piano measures seven inches. If Chieftain were a pianist he could with little effort cover two octaves and would leave Paderewick quite in the shade. If he were an officer for the Shouloos, once that those long fingers of his were wound around the neck of a big fiddle, what a wonderful performer he would be, proving the instrument would stand the strain.

Getting Knew With Him.

It was a fine morning of a way-side inn in Texas.

"Is your cup out?" asked the girl who was waiting on the table.

"No, the cup is not out, but the coffee is," he replied with superior smile.

The poor girl was somewhat confused, but she determined to pay him back in his own coin. She listened towards the stage door up and the smart gentleman asked:

"Does the stage dine here?"

"No, sir," replied the girl in a sarcastic tone of voice, "but the passengers do." —Texas Sittings.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—John Burns, the labor member of the house of commons, has delighted the house with a pun purely English. Correcting another member, he referred to the house of lords: "Not as the gilded chamber, sir, but as the gaily chamber."

—Prescott, the great historian, was almost blind during the whole of his literary life. He could use his eyes for only a few moments each day, and was compelled, both in making his historical researches and in writing his books, to rely on the vision of others.

—Senator Vance has a general sympathy in his illness, for he is a great favorite at Washington as well as in his own state. "The south has produced few better stump speakers, and, like Lincoln, he has at his tongue's end a fund of good stories to interest his audiences."

—Miss Olive Schreiner, the author of the strange book "The Story of an African Farm," is engaged to be married. Her betrothed, who is four or five years younger than the bride to be, is Mr. Cron Wright, the son of a well-known South African farmer and member of the Cape parliament. He is himself a successful farmer and clever speaker, and it is supposed that he will enter parliament in his life.

—S. F. B. Morse, the inventor of the telegraph, had beautiful hands, a fact that caught the attention of Benjamin West while Morse was yet an art student. It was Morse himself who furnished West with the model for the hand of Christ in one of West's most famous compositions, and it is said that he had been told to say to Morse that he might henceforth assert that he had a hand in the picture.

"Dr. Cyrus A. Bartol," says the Boston Herald, "is the last survivor of the famous 'Transcendental club,' in which Emerson was the central light. Dr. Holmes, Dr. George E. Ellis and Hon. Robert C. Winthrop are the other venerable Bostonians who are left of a former club of a notable generation, but Dr. Bartol is now, we believe, the only survivor of the brilliant company who must be named as the associates of Emerson in the middle part of this century."

—Mr. Arthur Balfour, at a recent meeting of the Psychological Research society at the Westminster town hall, London, spoke for an hour of the briefest notes, and is said to have made a profound impression, although he told no ghost stories and did not profess to be a medium. His chief topic was animal magnetism, and he said that at dinner he had often sat next to ladies who proved to him that they were able to exercise of will power to make any person at a distance turn toward them involuntarily. He remarked that it seemed possible to him that this faculty might be developed into a science of which ordinary philosophy takes very little note.

HUMOROUS.

—Willie: "Anny, what do they call the man who hunts up the taxes?"
Anny Sarah: "Taxidermist, my course, he's he skins everybody." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

—Duel Up to Date. —"I challenge you to a duel." "Accepted." "Your choice of weapons—dagger or pistols?" "Neither. I want a rope of Saint Blanc—rotten rope—three feet distance." —Fleegende Blatter.

—Mrs. Watts: "I saw in the paper, the other day, that it is impossible for a man to kick a woman. Is there is nothing to kick at?" Mrs. Potts: "I'll bet no married woman wrote that!" —Indianapolis Journal.

—Hicks (in the graveyard, reading a tombstone to "Sally" to the memory of Thomas Slenderminded): "Wicks—'Yes; isn't it ridiculous? Slenderminded was the most forgetful fellow that ever lived.'" —Boston Transcript.

—She can talk more gossip and scandal than any other woman in the country, and how she can rake over the failings of her neighbors. "Does she belong to the sewing circle?" "No, she belongs to the charity club!" —N. Y. Press.

—Must Have Loved Her Madly. —"Do you really and truly love me, Harry?" He: "Love you? Why, even have a fondness for that nuisance of a brother of yours." She: "Oh! Harry! You have made me so happy!" —Boston Transcript.

—Youngster: "Do you think it will pay to publish anything about the affair? It is a matter which can concern nobody but the parties themselves." Oldboy: "That's just it. It is nobody's business except my body! I want to read all we can print about it." —Boston Transcript.

"Herbert," she said, tenderly, "what did you write that poetry you wrote on my birthday?" "That wasn't poetry," he replied, with a sneer. "That was thought." "Why, what makes you think that?" "I got a magazine order to accept it for publication." —Washington Post.

—Where His Lamb Was. —In a Chicago restaurant, the other day, a gentleman left his wife for a moment to chat with an acquaintance at another table, and while he was there his friend persuaded him to partake of some lamb. Under a misapprehension the waiter, who had been before he had eaten it, whereupon he exclaimed: "Goodness! where is my lamb?" His wife, overhearing the question, answered in a clear voice: "Here I am!" —N. Y. Tribune.

A Narrow Escape

Took Poison by Mistake

Bad Effects Entirely Eliminated by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'Gentlemen:—In April last, through the effects of a dose of strychnine taken in mistake for another drug, I was laid up in St. John, N. B., for ten days. After this I never seemed to regain my former health, and continually suffered from indigestion and heart palpitation, for which I could get no relief. I thought I would try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking one bottle, I felt a little better, so continued using the remedy until I had consumed six bottles. I found myself gaining strength and flesh every day, and am now as healthy as I was before taking the poison.' F. V. Wasmolt, representing the Society of Performers, 50 Melbourne Avenue, Toronto, Ontario."

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Everybody should own this dictionary. It answers all questions concerning the history, spelling, pronunciation, and meaning of words.

A Library in Itself. It also gives the often desired information concerning eminent persons, the names of the countries, cities, towns, and places, and contains a large number of translations of foreign quotations. It is indispensable in the home, office, study, and schoolroom.

One Great Standard Authority. Hon. B. J. Brewer, Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, writes: "The International Dictionary is the perfect of dictionaries, and I recommend it to all who desire to be fully informed."

is never entertained by the children for a medicine that tastes bad. This explains the popularity among little ones of Scott's Emulsion, a preparation of cod-liver oil almost as palatable as milk. Many mothers have grateful knowledge of its benefits to weak, sickly children.

COLD NERVE.

How a Hobe Fooled a Smart Attorney of the Hoosier State.

For several days about a dozen hobs were camped on the river near Lawrenceburg, Ind. Becoming a nuisance by begging from house to house, the police last week routed them. One of the gang was recognized as an ex-convict who some years ago was arrested on the charge of robbery and tried in Dearborn county. O. B. Liddle, then an attorney of Lawrenceburg, but now of Denver, Colorado, defended the fellow, who had half a dozen aliases. The prisoner promised to pay $50 for the lawyer's services, but, receiving a two years' sentence in the penitentiary, and being removed to Jeffersonville without paying anything, the attorney never expected to hear of his unfortunate client again or receive a cent on his fee. But when the prisoner had paid the penalty inflicted by the court he returned to Lawrenceburg and stole a $200-horse from the unpaid attorney, took it to Cincinnati, sold it for $110, revisited Lawrenceburg, hunted up the lawyer, and surprised, as well as delighted him, by paying the $50 fee he had promised before his conviction. Mr. Liddle praised the fellow for his honesty, little thinking he was getting part of the money realized on the sale of his valuable family horse. The stolen animal was never recovered, and the thief, whose real name was Smith, would never have been suspected of the crime if he had not boasted of it when subsequently sent to the penitentiary a second time, from Ripley county for horse-stealing. He said it was too good a joke to keep and he wanted the people to know how easily he had fooled a smart attorney, and convinced him he was an honest man by unexpectedly paying an old debt. As there was no warrant in existence for his arrest, and Mr. Liddle was over 1,000 miles away, the officers could not hold him for the stealing of the horse, and he was made to hustle for another location as rapidly as possible.

Bloodhounds to Be Used.

In the future bloodhounds will be used to track criminals in Fayette county. Since before the war this practice has not been in force. At a meeting of the fiscal court Squire Levi Grow threw a bombshell into the camp by moving that a committee be appointed to consider a proposition to purchase six bloodhounds for the county, one to be placed in each precinct and used by the farmers in chasing down thieves of all characters. Squire Grow explained that the amount of meat and the number of fowls and small animals that had been stolen from the farmers made this action necessary. The committee reported favoring the scheme, and the chances are that the blue grass will use bloodhounds instead of detectives in catching criminals in the time to come. This will not be an innovation, but a restoration of the practices of before the war in late times.

How It Pays.

As an illustration of the value of advertising even in small matters, one of our druggists this week said that year he did not advertise his garden seeds and sold $19 worth; this year he kept it before the people through the columns of the Democrat and his sales amounted to $300; another gentleman living in the suburbs put in a small local announcing garden plants for sale, and disposed of more than $20 worth of tomato plants alone. He said nearly every customer mentioned the fact that he had seen the advertisement in the Democrat, and had come in consequence.—Winchester Democrat.

Women's Tributes.

With the most patriotic and impressive ceremonies, the monument erected by the women of the United States to the mother of Gen. Washington was dedicated at Fredericksburg, Va., last Friday. Brief speeches were made by President Cleveland and Governor O'Ferrall, Senator Daniel delivering the oration. Among the throng in attendance were Vice President Stevenson, Secretaries Carlisle, Gresham, Lamont, Morton and Russell, Justice John M. Harlan, and many ladies from Washington and elsewhere.

Sheriff Douthill, of Mayfield, arrested Ben Thompson, a young man 20 years of age, in Missouri, Wednesday, on the charge of murdering an old man named Ashlock last fall in Wingo, 20 miles below Paducah. Ashlock was run over on the streets and killed mysteriously. Following the murder was the disappearance of Thompson and Rome Ashlock, a nephew of the murdered man. The nephew is still at large.

Their Nerve Failed Them.

The east bound express train on the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad was fired into one night last week near Horse Creek, Ala., where the miners' riot occurred. The engineer stopped the train and two men attempted to climb upon the tender. The express messenger seeing them, opened fire from his car, and the men fled to the woods. They were armed, but did not return the fire. It is thought to have been an attempt to rob the train, the nerve of the robbers failing them when the express messenger began shooting at them. Great excitement prevailed among the passengers, two women fainted. There is no clue to the robbers.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr, of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up in Wisconsin, and in consequence has had another attack. "It came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant." For sale by John M. Rose.

Hot After Moonshiners.

United States Deputy Marshal M. S. Bullington, of Hawesville, Ky., who has been reconnoitering over Grayson county for some time in search of moonshiners, has captured and placed in jail at Leitchfield Bird Crimes, of the Bear creek neighborhood, who is charged with selling liquor without license. He has a warrant for Charles Bates, who is already in jail on a former charge of selling liquor without license. Only last week Deputy Marshals Bullington and Hunter and Town Marshal Meredith raided a moonshine district near Big Clifty and captured one man, but could not locate the still.

Mrs. Lou Day requests us to say to the ladies of Hazel Green and the surrounding country that she has just opened a full and complete line of millinery, dry goods, notions, ladies' dress goods, etc., which she will sell at the lowest price for cash or produce—butter, lard, chickens, eggs, or anything she can use for the table. She has a nice line of trimmed and untrimmed hats, for spring and summer, which will be added to from time to time, so that the very latest styles can be found here. She also has a fine line of toilet articles.

Playing With a Snake.

The family of J. Craig, a merchant at Blairstown, N. J., were horrified one afternoon last week to find a small child of Mr. Craig's playing with a live black snake four and a half feet long on the front steps of his house. A sister of the child happened to go to the door, and screamed when she saw the plaything that the child had. At her outcry the snake glided away, but returned shortly afterward and was killed. The township is infested with snakes of all kinds, and scores of them have been killed since the warm weather set in.

Dr. S. F. Scott, Blue Ridge, Harrison county, Mo., says: "For whooping cough Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is excellent." By using it freely the disease is deprived of all dangerous consequences. There is no danger in giving the remedy to babies, as it contains nothing injurious. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by John M. Rose.

Twenty years ago this spring while plowing, W. A. Van Sickle, of New Brunswick, N. J., lost a watch in a field. Recently a colored man, while planting corn, dug up a peculiarly shaped article, which turned out to be the watch. After being soaked in oil the watch was found to be in fairly good condition. The crystal of the watch, which was open-faced, was unbroken.
